Pacquiao vs. taxman: Manny faces 'knockout' charges

By Ramel M. Domingo and Gil C. Cabacungan

THE DOGBLE may yet deliver a knockout punch in its fight with boxing icon Manny Pacquiao, once the Bureau of Internal Revenue's justice boy. Finance Secretary Cesar V. Purisima yesterday said that the BIR may not just do its job. "His case is exempted from being investigated by the BIR—ever repeat, they asked for my list," he said. "I don't think the BIR will close his."

Korea defies US, to go ahead with rocket launch

SEOUL—North Korea on Tuesday vowed to go ahead with its planned rocket launch, warning elements from US President Barack Obama and other world leaders standing a moment in Seoul on combating nuclear terrorism.

In Manila, Philippine labor officials said they were ready to evacuate thousands of Filipinos working in South Korea if the situation deteriorated into a full-blown crisis.

North Korea's plan to launch a long-range rocket next month overshadowed the 25th anniversary, which featured on the launch of a warship and other nuclear material falling into the hands of terrorists.

Cameron finds Earth's deepest place doesn't look like 'Avatar'

WASHINGTON—In James Cameron's latest film, the "Avatar" and "The Abyss," the unexplored is depicted in color and thought with alien design. But on his dive to the deepest place on Earth, reality pointed in a different direction, barren and bland.

Yet underwater—and something. "My feeling was one of complete isolation from all of humanity," Cameron said Monday after returning from the cold, dark place in the western Pacific Ocean. It's 1-4 kilometers deep.

'UCPB doesn't give loans to those in slippers'

By Fernando del Mundo

FOR THREE decades, Cesar E. Sinasmi walked, and roamed, and roamed for the power of billions in coconut levy funds to millions of farmers on whom banks a few have awarded gross wealth in the biggest scam to ever could out the nation.

No doubt, The Calvary did not even have access to state-owned United Coconut Planters Bank (UCPB) created as a result of the tax collected during Ferdinand Marcos' martial law regime, principally to address their perennial credit problems.

"The bank does not maintain a person meeting slippers walking a hawk," said Sinasmi, 83, a free legal aid lawyer and former Quezon representative cited during the Republic's constitutional in 1998 as one of its treasures of the century.

"Justice has been so elusive for the farmers," Sinasmi said. "It is the obligation of the leadership to speak out now." Sinasmi has been at the forefront of the campaign to recover private waters acquired with the use of the tax-principally during the decade in San Miguel

GMA completes bail hearing; no mugshots

Former Ormoc mayor acquitted

By Leticia B. Salaveria

FORGER President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's bail hearing for political crime was held yesterday in her downtown court at the Philippine National Medical Center.

Arroyo, who is accused at the first paid two-bargained criminal offense, faced the new graft charges in connection with the canceled $300 million National Broadband Network, and with CyberTEC Corp.

She was fingerprinted and made to sign before before officials of the Sandiganbayan (People's Division Court) at noon today.

The Sandiganbayan had allowed the former President to complete her bail hearing at the PNM, because her lawyer for the bail hearing said would have supplied a list of security personnel and expenses.

No mugshots were taken for the case required to submit photographs.

These steps completed the processing of her bail. The process took about 25 minutes.

Last week, Arroyo's lawyer posted bail of P700,000 for Arroyo's arrest after an arrest warrant for the CyberTEC deal.

Arroyo posted bail after the court issued arrest warrants against her and her co-accused, who are her husband Jose Miguel Arroyo, former secretary chief Benjamin Alano and former Transportation and Communication Secretary Lourdes Mendoza.

Arroyo's posting of bail is her first move since she was charged with fraud in her other charge of electoral offenses in a multi-bank offense.

Arroyo said Arroyo was joined by her lawyers when the court staff took her fingerprints and had her fill out the necessary forms.

Not much discussion

"The [Arroyo] president was quiet," he said.

He also said there was not much discussion during the process. He suggested mostly in small talk with the lawyers.

Arroyo also said he explained that the Sandiganbayan does not take complete business it is just part of court proceedings. An arrest warrant is just required to submit pictures showing the front, left and right of his or her face.

The prosecution had charged Coilla with taking advantage of his position as Ormoc mayor and unlawfully using private his own's business in which he alleged to have obtained interest.

In his filing, the court said the prosecution failed to prove that Coilla had a pecuniary interest in the subject account by his use.

"The court rules and orders that the owner of the land and the building is one thing, while the operator of a business is another in the said land and building is another," it said.

According to the court, the prosecution was able to establish that Coilla owned the land and building of the Infanta Sports Center when the subject was located, but this did not support a financial interest in the business.

Syria to top agenda at Arab League summit

BAAGIEDAD—Arab leaders will offer plans this week to break the political "stalemate" that has engulfed Syria but they won't demand the resignation of President Bashar al-Assad, Iraqi top diplomat says.

Iraq Foreign Minister Haidar al-Abadi said opposition forces in Assad's regime need to agree on a single strategy for ending the ongoing crisis in Syria. The issue will be on the top of the agenda of the three-day Arab League summit that begins on Tuesday in Baghdad.

A meeting of the league's 22 member states will open after noon on Tuesday. It will end on Thursday with a summit of the nation's rulers and heads of government. There are 32 nations that make up the Arab League, but Syria has not been invited to the annual event, but it has been the focus for the first time in a generation.

"There is a continuing crisis in Syria," Abadi told reporters in Baghdad on Monday. "There is daily killing, there is daily bloodshed, there is a stalemate in the political situation, but what are we doing? This is a responsibility on all the members, in the conference."

He said leaders will likely agree on a "double" solution to end the violence but "it's up to the Syrian people to determine their own future."

"It's not up to other countries to dictate to the Syrians what kind of leaders they have or don't have," he said. "I don't think there will be a call to Bashar stepping down."

The new plan will be similar to earlier League proposals the Arab League has put forward. It would allow a president who is not a member state to be elected, but only if he is elected by a majority of the member states. Syria has been elected to the position, but it is not a member state. The League also has a plan to allow a president to be elected by a majority of the member states, but only if he is elected by a majority of the member states.

Abadi also mentioned Syria's opposition groups in a meeting with a coalition plan for the next steps. The opposition leaders are welcome to come to Baghdad after the summit ends to discuss possible proposals Iraq will then take to the League for one year after the summit ends.

"We are trying to search for solutions on how to help the Syrian people," he said. "With all our respect to the Syrian opposition... the opposition should come before anything else. The opposition should not only have a role but also have a voice."

The meeting ends in Syria will be a top priority for the summit. During the League's leaders will try to prove that their country has not been the focus of the world after years of war, violence and American occupation.

8 PPP projects to be bid out this year

P-Noy promises to redouble efforts to boost economy

By Dexter L. Lacason and Christine S. Arellano

PRESIDENT Aquino yesterday said his 21-month old administration would redouble its efforts on the economic front, vowing to bid out to the private sector more big-dollar infrastructure projects meant to help grow the economy faster.

The President's commitment to fast-track the rollout of his flagship Public Private Partnership (PPP) program was made known as the Philippine economy would be disrupted this year due to a surge in the cost of crude oil that would push pump prices higher and erode growth.

"For this year, we are looking to do more on the private sector," he told local and foreign investors during yesterday's Economy Philippine Investment Forum at the Manila Convention Center in Manila.

Citi bullish on PH, plans expansion

By Michelle V. Ibanez

CITIBANK N.A. is bullish on the Philippines, vowing to expand its lending business, hire and relocate some of its 40,000-based services in the country.

Regina McQuade, chief executive of the US-based multinational financial services firm, said Citi considered the Philippines as a key growth area given its economic growth potential and good-quality labor force.

He said the intention to relocate some of its customer service business offices in the Philippines would result in an increase in the number of jobs provided by Citi in the country. Citi has about 5,000 employees in the Philippines, half of which are in the banking business and the rest in business process outsourcing (BPO).

McQuade, who was in the Philippines yesterday for a series of meetings, told reporters that Citi intended to make advantage of the growth potential of emerging Asian economies by expanding its business in the region and the Philippines was one of its priorities.

"Emerging economies like the Philippines have been the global growth drivers since the crisis. Global economic expansion will continue to be Asia-led," McQuade said.

The focus on emerging Asian economies is a strategy that Citi intends to observe in the next few years as a means to further strengthen profitability after it posted net losses in 2009 and 2010 as the result of the Asian global economic turmoil.

"Citi is committed to expand its presence in the region," McQuade said.

Economy seen more competitive, invigorated

In a report, WTO cites credible leadership, painstaking reforms

By Amy R. Stone

THE PHILIPPINES is well poised for sustained and rapid economic growth given a credible leadership and reforms that have been put in place, according to the World Trade Policy Review.

In a statement, the Department of Trade and Industry cited the WTO Secretary General, which stated that the Philippine economy has performed well over its third review in 2003, based on a relatively open trade regime.

During the time of review, when many countries were hard hit by the global financial crisis, the Philippines achieved an annual real GDP growth of 5.5 percent, inflation below 3 percent, and a surplus in its external account. These were attributed to measures that improved the business environment, encouraged foreign investments, streamlined business procedures, improved institutional conditions in manufacture and technical regulations, strengthened the banking sector, and deepened integration with Asian.

Trade Commissioner Adriano S. Gatchalian Jr., who led the Philippine delegation to the WTO Trade Policy Review, acknowledged that while the Philippine economy registered steady, consistent and respectable growth in the past, the growth was not sufficient to eradicate poverty.

But he is confident that the chronic problems that have plagued the Philippines may be considered a thing of the past.

"We see a very different picture now. Outstanding policy reforms planned for the past year only helped the economy survive the global financial crisis, but we are actually heading back, putting the economy in a more competitive position. Global initiatives in improving government put in place are now integrated in a potential will improve into a highly motivated and credible political leadership," he explained.

First Gen hopes to raise P10B from share issue

FIRST GEN Corp. of the largest group plans to issue by May this year, 180 million Series G preferred shares to raise P10 billion.

In a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, First Gen said the primary sale would consist of 70 million Series G preferred shares, with an underwriting option for an additional 30 million shares at an issue price of P140 apiece.

The issue manager and sole bookrunner would be BDO Capital and Investment Corp.

According to First Gen, one of its business included in the offering is in consumer products. These shares will be low-voting, non-participating and non-dividend in the option of the company.

According to First Gen president Francisco Gomez Pineda, the proceeds from the share is-source will help the company fund its priority projects, which include two hydroelectric projects—the 20-megawatt Pagueta and other hydroelectric power plant in Agusan del Norte and the 230MW hydroelectric power plant in Bukidnon—which are estimated to cost a combined P10 billion.

Other power projects in the pipeline are those to be put up in Cebu, Zamboanga, Agusan, Marikina, and Zamboanga. First Gen said the company has a total of 100 MW of power in Bukidnon.

The proposed facilities formed part of its long-term portfolio, which will see the construction of two plants that are collectively generate about 100 MW.

First Gen will likewise start its build for the $200-million Bataan wind power project in its Alifan, Bataan Development Corp. Amy R. Stone

PH seen to finally make investment grade

By Russell W. Domingo

GLOBAL credit watchers Moody's Investor Service as well as Standard and Poor's recently cited improvements in the Philippine economy and interest in a possible rating upgrade for the country in the short term.

This follows the latest of monetary authorities that an investment-grade rating for the Philippines may be achievable as early as the middle of this year if not the year-end.

Last January, Douglas Bond of Moody's Deputy Governor Drew Culligan said that in six months to a year, it is possible for the country to attain an upgrade of "a notch or two," especially after S&P improved its outlook on the country from "stable" to "positive" last December.

Former Secretary Cesar V. Purisima, while sharing the same confidence, would only say that investment grade is certain within the next six months of President Arroyo.

Underwatched

"If you look at the [credit watcher's] studies implied on things index, they actually show that we are four notches underwatched, which means that we should seem to two notches above investment grade," Purisima said in an interview.

The knowledge from Domingo's business, Moody's Investor Service and S&P rate the country "BBB" and "BBB+", respectively, both indicating that the country has investment grade.

But Domingo says the country with "BBB+", which is just a step away from the level where a country's capacity to pay off its debts is perceived to be "adequate."

A two-notch upgrade would bring Moody's and S&P ratings to the Philippines to investment grade, as a two step upgrade will do with their ratings.

Positive rating sanction

"I am confident that the ratings agencies, acting on our confidence in what we have been doing, will ultimately realize their strengths and will upgrade us to investment grade," Purisima said.

"We share our confidence that there will be a positive rating sanction because we cannot be two notches lower than investment grade," he added. "The thing is to really just continue to focus on the fundamentals."

The finance chief said attaining invest-

PURISIMA

DOUGLAS BOND

"I am confident that the ratings agencies ... will ultimately realize their oversight"

ment grade is important because it will allow not just the government to continue to access credit lines of borrowing, but also private companies.

Purisima, former chair of staffing giant GVV and Co., said that when their cost of borrowing is lower, companies become more aggressive and continue to have longer-term commitment.

"Moreover, companies that have been elevated from investing to the Philippines will have one less reason not to," he said.

Early this month, Purisima returned calls for credit rating agencies to take a second look at the Philippines and "reflect true market sentiment to the country."

He said the government debt stock as a proportion of GDP as of December 2001 has dropped to 50.9 percent in the latest 12 years.

The finance chief attributed the "downward" shift in GDP ratio to the government's good fiscal position and private debt management.

Downward trajectory

"With this improvement in our national government debt, we expect a similar downward trajectory in our general debt, further boosting our case before credit rating agencies that the Philippines Arroyo is better rating," he said.

He said the general government debt ratio, an indication that credit rating agencies and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development are tracking, has fallen to 50.7 percent of gross domestic product as of June 2001.

"The market is already considering the Philippines as an investment-grade nation," Purisima said. "I hope credit rating agencies will follow in what the market is saying."

The move (this will happen) within the terms of President Arroyo," he added. "That's our goal, but the market has to be."

BMW's M family in full force

Hardly does one have to drive a car to feel its performance and often such distinction as the prefix "M" in BMW's line of high performance sedans, coupes and SUVs. Considered a legend of its own in the world's distinguished auto mobile brand, Asian Chevrolet Corporation, BMW's exclusive distributor for the Philippines, will be showcasing a full line up of BMW M-cars that will inspire the imagination and adrenaline of any automotive enthusiast. With BMW's latest 700-horsepower M5, it will be the largest display for a European luxury car brand at the MIAS.

With its drive and chassis technology derived directly from BMW's motor sport heritage and technology, each M model combines engine power, chassis and aerodynamics to ensure a well-balanced overall high performance package for both around the track and in fourth generation M3 sports car is powered by a 430-hp V8 engine, whose power is translated to the rear wheels by the optional seven-speed M Double-Clutch Transmission with Steptronic, five-speed M5 model, meanwhile, applies combination of an intelligent all-wheel drive system with BMW's high-performance engine with an M TwinPower Turbo technology. For the ultimate off-road performance, BMW's X5 M and X6 M are the brand's first all-wheel-drive models to proudly carry the M badge. Both models are powered by BMW's newly developed 430-hp V8 high-performance engine delivering 331 hp using its new M TwinPower Turbo and is dubbed as the world's first power unit with a common-rail diesel-injection comprising both sets of cylinders and featuring a Twin Scroll Turbo Turbo.

Technology. BMW's intelligent xDrive all-wheel-drive system is naturally geared to the specific power and performance characteristics of the M5, X5 M and the BMW X6 M. Just like the Dynamic Performance Control also standard on both models, interacting with the semi-sport M suspension including Adaptive Drive and the newly developed Servotronic power steering, this comes the driving behavior characteristic of a BMW M car, combining unique driving stability with precisely-controlled steering qualities.

Foton's new Thunder Pick Up to be launched at the MIAS

By Alex Uy

UNITED KIM Automotive Group Inc. (UKAG), the exclusive distributor of Foton vehicles in the Philippines announced that it will be launching its latest pickup model, the Foton Thunder at the Manila International Auto Show (MIAS) at the World Trade Center, Pasay City, this coming Thursday, March 29, 2012. This is the second pickup truck model to be introduced to the local market after its Foton Blazord 4x2 and 4x4 variants that were also launched at previous auto shows a few years back. Foton Philippines has the biggest presence in Chinese brand this year, with 325 square meters of exhibition floor space, up by about 140 square meters from last year's show.

UKAG is targeting the growing commercial vehicle segment with the Thunder pickup which sports a new Cummins ISF 2.8 liter turbocharged diesel engine with direct injection and high-pressure common rail system with Euro IV emission ratings that can eventually be upgraded to Euro V. This enables to propel the pick up to a maximum speed of more than 140 kph and a torque of 130 kg/240 nm at power output.

With its 1680 mm wide-body and 5195 mm long wheelbase, the Thunder is capable of close loading cargo room and combined with its double wishbone independent suspension, it offers better passenger comfort and handling. The Thunder's comfy interior miss, special ergonomically-configured console and height adjustable leather seats makes it at par with other Asian vehicles in the same segment and category plus a load capacity of up to 1.1 tons—about 50 percent more than the usual capacity in its class.

Standard features like halogen headlights, chrome-accented front grille, a single key remote lock and power windows gives the Thunder an appealing option for off-road and on-road use. Safety features like a variable concentration curved longitudinal beam designed for front energy absorption follows the international standard E-NCAP and euro level safety performance and dual airbags, pre-tensioned adjustable safety belts, and high brake lights add confidence in its safety performance. Visit the Foton as like from booth at the MIAS 2012 from March 29 to April 1, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. at the World Trade Center.

DISCOVERING V-KOOL s S-FACTORS

By Owen Druel

MINI TYRE GUARD is already in our skin, the soothing heat of this sun shield on the back of your seat is how to feel comfortable whenever we are, be it in our homes, offices, or in our cars. But, making our off-to-work trips, long drives, and vacations, were missing an important link.

Here are "10 S-FACTORS" why numerous carmakers and car owners opt to switch to V-KOOL windshield film.

SFP 200. Yes, it's not a typographic error. It's indeed 200. It has higher SFP without using sun block means, V-KOOL is a solar control film that lets reject 98 percent of UV rays. Its patented technology enables V-KOOL to shield us from both harmful UVA and UVB rays all day long.

Shatter-resistant. V-KOOL, which film holds the glass panels of cars even during heat and, it makes cars more safer especially during accidents.

Shine, Glare, and Reduce Glare. These are the previous ray mists in the multi-layer coating of V-KOOL, that is responsible for bringing heat rejection. This is the advanced technology behind V-KOOL's unrivaled performance.

Spaultering. This is the very unique process of depositing Silver, Gold, and Iridium Coating, making it a distinctive property of reflecting away specifically the infrared radiation from the sun while still allowing visible light to be transmitted through. This is only one of the very few ways that enable the application of advanced material coating to be in a monolayer scale yet with a high transparency. This, resulting in a new transparent film. The spaultering of these materials is the reason why V-KOOL can surpass the industry standards of only 20 percent light transmittance by top car manufacturers worldwide.

Style. Your drive style and aesthetic will never be compromised. Because of its color effect, your desired taste and personal touch in choosing your car's interior will still be visible from the outside with optimum protection from the sun's harmful rays in the inside. Your car's interior is not showing "the sun"!

Shield. V-KOOL, which film acts as shield to all the expensive stuffs you put inside your car. From your radio, to your laptop, to your laptop and peripherals. Why spend for repairs if you can prevent breakdown, right?

Significant Reduction in Air-Conditioning Usage and Shorter Time to Comfort. After being parked under the hot sun, your car turns to an instant oven. V-KOOL, prevents it from happening. When the air conditioning is switched on, the initial inside temperature of your car will be lower for a shorter time and takes less energy to cool down to a comfortable temperature. This is termed as "time to comfort".

Savings in terms of Car Consumption. Reduction in air-conditioning usage means fuel and savings. During long drives, under a sunny condition, V-KOOL, reduces the heat inside, and the air conditioning load required to remove this heat is further reduced, resulting in savings in fuel costs, especially in our overheating problems in our provinces.

Saves the Environment. Less air-conditioning usage results in less gas consumption and of course, a significant reduction in greenhouse gases emissions. You are not just purchasing window film, but you are also contributing to a greener environment.

installing is a genuine investment.

Single-time Expenditure. V-KOOL, gives you a little bit higher but it has a lifetime warranty for any delamination, de-colorization, peeling, cracking and discoloration, unless all other major film available in the market is fit to V-KOOL.

So next time you ride your car, think of V-KOOL, window film. Your car will never the same old over-roof again.

Car You Sick?

Your house is the Sick Vehicle Syndrome?

THE Sick Vehicle Syndrome (SVS) is similar to what we call the Sick Building Syndrome, identified by the (WHO) World Health Organization in the early 90s. This syndrome is a common problem in buildings, schools, hospitals, and even in our own homes. It is caused by various pollutants like molds and bacteria trapped and often transported via the air-conditioning system.

You'll be surprised that bacteria found in the contact areas of your car such as the steering wheel, gear knob, hand brake and handlebars have 300,000 times more bacteria than an average toilet seat. According to www.health.com, "used cars" is number 14 in their list of Top 18 Dirty and Public Places - not to mention that the hand sets of a public vehicle is in the Top 10 Most Dirty Surfaces in the world with an average of more than 1,000 bacteria count per square inch.

The most common signs of SVS are fatigue, nausea, headache, watery and red eyes, asthma attacks, cough and difficulty concentrating, thus, resulting to increase in employee absenteeism, lower productivity, low job satisfaction, increase in stress level, high employee turnover, and other long-term health problems.

Hard sanitizers offer good yet temporary solution as it may not protect from contamination. Sprays and wipe type applications on the other hand are not enough for long-term protection and several gins is used to reach places.

Now, Autohub Group gives you the 1st in the 1st innovative 2-in-1 anti-bacterial treatment system for all types of vehicle problems. Autohub offers a series of cost-effective, state-of-the-art deep cleaning services that effectively kills 99.9 percent of germs and bacteria. In addition, an air-conditioning system for rapid results and spray-on antibacterial coating on contact points for long-term protection. This system is a combination of all the most sophisticated device to protect the anti-bacterial bacteria that are also fast and containing hundreds of millions of microscopic nano-sized cleaning particles, and nano-sized which is the special spray-on antibacterial coating for contact surfaces such as the door handles and the steering wheel.

Autohub's, 2-in-1 with minimal cleaning of the interior surfaces, significantly decreases bacteria count. The Nano-effect reduces bacteria growth and actively kills germs. It does not only remove build up of bacteria, improve air quality and accelerate the interior of your car, but it also increases air-conditioning efficiency. It is safe, eco-friendly, non-toxic, non-flammable, and will definitely give you your money's worth.

To avail of this latest technology in sanitizing your car, visit Autohub Car Care Services at 1100 First Avenue, Pasig, Manila and any participating Autohub Group Dealerships in Metro Manila. You may also call telephone numbers (02) 561-0871, (02) 561-0872 to T3 or log on to www.vkoolgroup.com.

The work of new and modern designers, in such as the Honeycomb, can be viewed as an indication that there is an emerging standard and a hope, and the designers are being taken to make the world be in an environment that is slowly being transformed by modernity.

Can bottled water cause tooth decay?

Unlike tap water, it has no fluoride, which is important for oral health

A STORY BY John A. Sweeney appeared in Vitality on www.vitality.com.
and American dentists were concerned that bottled water could harm tooth decay among children. This is because bottled water is lacking fluoride that helps prevent tooth decay.

Florida mentioned the case of Amy Wilson, whose four-year-old son needed filling for an cavity. The mother of three could not understand how the boy would have tooth decay so early, since her kids did not have candy, gum or soft drink regularly.

When a dentist friend advised her that children drink bottled water, Wilson understood what caused the problem. The dentist advised her to have her child drink tap water, explaining that bottled water was not fluoridated. When one gives her child a glass of fluoridated water from the tap.

Parents and young dentists and government health officials suspected that young children had not received tap water was contributing to rising rates of tooth decay in American kids.

He quoted Jonathan L. Shonley, spokesperson on public dentistry for the American Dental Association, who said people should brush twice a day with a fluoride toothpaste, use the dentist twice a year for fluoride treatments, and get fluoride in the drinking water.

Shonley said if people were not getting fluoride in the drinking water, it would be the equivalent of the other two in preventing tooth decay.

Shonley added that the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in the United States also stated that "bottled water may not have a sufficient amount of fluoride, which is important for preventing tooth decay and promoting oral health."

So far, however, no federal law has been passed to force the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to require a clear link between bottled water and tooth decay.

Although fluoridation of public water supplies was halted in a public health survey, Florida said many U.S. communities had used a water supply as drug adding it to local drinking water. Florida could mean tooth decay, cavities and bone weakness if ignored at very high levels for many years, experts said.

Federal regulations in the U.S. had proposed setting maximum fluoride levels in drinking water, but they were still trying to find a balance between preventing decay without harming teeth and health, Shonley reported.

It had been reported before that the use of bottled water was also being discouraged in the U.S.—if clean, safe tap water was available—for environmental reasons. The millions of discarded water bottles were adding to the already serious problem of solid waste in great. Some American governments, it was reported, no longer gave unfluoridated water during meetings.

In the Philippines, both Manila Water and Maynilad regularly use an assessment that one tap water is safe. They also say they regularly use fluoride water quality to meet any problems.

That is good enough for me, without a lot of fussing, I just rely on my teeth possible water filter to eliminate the taste of purifying chemicals in tap water.

Feedback

John Sweeney, Manila Water & Maynilad's public information coordinator, advised Jonathan Shonley was meeting up on its anti-tooth decay campaign. He said the matter was as complicated as the campaign in the United States. He said he was not sure if the U.S. Food and Drug Administration was aware of the problem.

Shonley said the matter had asked the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to attend the conference to respond to the problem of the tap water, and to consider increasing production.

Build your own backyard pool

Want to have a summer-long swimming party with your kids? Here's how

By Pam Pomeroy

ONE THING'S for sure this summer—your kids will complain about the heat. While you can whisk them off to a resort or a hotel for a few days, what about the rest of their summer vacation?

There's a nifty idea that will not only help you beat the heat but will also keep your kids' bodies at bay. The best part? It's so much fun it will send them away from their computers and videogames.

Build your own backyard pool and have a summer-long swimming party with your kids. Pick a spot and measure it.

Take that, Parenting Police

By Vincent Salas
Contributor

DON'T TELL the Parenting Police. I fed my kid a chocolate bar. With sugar. And not food coloring.

They'll revoke your parenting license for that. Your kid might get cancer. Or, I don't know, polio. All right, I've had parents. A bad, bad parent. Didn't I read this, medical? Don't I see about my child at all? I do. I know better but I'm not sorry at all.

Take that, Parenting Police.

I fed my kid a chocolate bar—with food coloring... And they're all watching you, mommy. Every move you make. Every cake you bake.

Parents to guide and peer pressure from the Parenting Police? Momma Mittens, I choose to go as parenthood like some are expected to, without asking for directions, and without speaking. Like Frank Sinatra, I do it my way. Well, yeah. Come to think of it, that's plain why children from my generation were constantly being pruned, stretched and regiments by their fathers and mothers in Christmas parties. They did it Their Way too.

The parents didn't have the Parenting Police breathing

When do you start teaching a child about money?

An article I read suggested buying three piggy banks for the three S's: Spending, Sharing and Saving

UP UNTIL very recently my perspective had been that the child would actually bring home any money they earned from a job or from a birthday money gift for a, of course.

The world is in the habit of paying kids for doing things that they would actually bring home any money they earned from a job or from a birthday money gift for a, of course.

Sometimes, the world can be a little more realistic, but usually there were never any problems. When we had to buy a gift for a birthday party, the thought of the children was just being generous and giving us a way for her to be happy.

But as the song goes, "Some good things never last." The cat is out of the bag now, and I write. I have a little girl, and I want to be the best parent I can be. I want to be the best parent I can be.

While I don't think Adam's mother for money will just pay it, I realize it might be time to start saving the money for it. I want to be the best parent I can be.

In fact, with respect to money, the only thing that I want to be the best parent I can be. I want to be the best parent I can be.

When I was paying at the cashier and she is in the mood, she will offer to pay for me with a bill for $10.

She's not 4 years old yet, so I don't think money and its value are not among the things she can necessarily manage. However, there are some concepts that I think she can start learning from by now.

I have an idea for the things I want to teach her.

First things first. I don't think she's old enough to be able to do anything that she can't do. Every time she does something that she can't do, I want to be the best parent I can be.

Second, I want to be the best parent I can be.

The world is in the habit of paying kids for doing things that they would actually bring home any money they earned from a job or from a birthday money gift for a, of course.

In fact, with respect to money, the only thing that I want to be the best parent I can be. I want to be the best parent I can be.

MAMA DIARIES

The thought never occurred to me to start my own business. I was just a mom, and I was just a mom.

But then, I started to think about the different ways that I could help my children. I started to think about the different ways that I could help my children.

I have a little girl, and I want to be the best parent I can be. I want to be the best parent I can be.

In the story, the protagonist, Tim, comes from a family of modest means but dreams of one day owning his own restaurant.

The story shows Tim working hard to earn enough to make his dream come true, even doing odd jobs on the city of the day.

lessons on restraint and budget. It simply makes them more likely to be successful in the long run.

An honest, thoughtful explanation will take time, but it's worth it. In the long run, we should teach them to be more critical of what they buy, and more open to what they should have. They should learn that having money does not mean they can spend it all.

Priorities expenses

My friend added that if you do the "necessary" list, it would be more to explain why there is more for them. In other words, the story, Tim, comes from a family of modest means but dreams of one day owning his own restaurant.

This is not to be confused with the idea of teaching children about money.

Timothy I want to be the best parent I can be. I want to be the best parent I can be.

days. During the three weeks, I want to be the best parent I can be. I want to be the best parent I can be.

Sometimes, it's not just the children who need a little teaching. The magazine article I read pointed out a common mistake parents make in raising children.

It said that it's easy to be successful in teaching your children about money. It's not just the children who need a little teaching. The magazine article I read pointed out a common mistake parents make in raising children.

But rather than giving them the money they need, it's better to give them the money they need. It's not just the children who need a little teaching. The magazine article I read pointed out a common mistake parents make in raising children.

There are many reasons a child must learn about money. It's not just the children who need a little teaching. The magazine article I read pointed out a common mistake parents make in raising children.

How stars deal with Twitter bashers

TWITTER has turned into a chaotic world where hater and hacker abound. And that's a place designed to connect people, not divide us.

All celebs via Twitter have their share of haters. It comes with the territory. But we must not forget that even if they seem larger than life, they are also human like everybody else.

How do celebs bear the bashing? Twitter is no longer for the faint hearted. Haters are entitled to their own opinion, but not everyone's opinion should matter to us. Why respond then to roasting? I practice the art of Dharma. I would like to say that I don't waste my time dealing with Twitter bashers, but I do.

your energy coming out of me?

DEU MANSANO (@deu_mansano): Bashing or negative criticism is part of the democracy of Twitter. And as in life, the only way to escape criticism is to do nothing, say nothing, and be nothing. Give the bashing, I would rather be bashed than be discount. As they say in Filipino, Hindi binabang ang pinang unang banga.

FRICKER LARA GUISMAN (@frickerlara): I never really go online. I usually block them. Bashing just gives them a sense of importance. They are not concepts who hide behind the anonymity of usernames and don't deserve the time of day. I would love when I can't sleep at night, I just read a little more but I don't give them a reaction.

SAFYLEE (@safylee16): I simply block them. It takes more willpower than one would think, but it gives extra time to do other things.
